SEABRIGHT TO PLEAD AGAIN TO CONGRESS

The cyclone held up off the Jersey coast more than a day by an acrial barrier of high pressure went on its course yesterday to the northeast, hugging the shore, and at 8 o'clock last night its windless centre was at Eastport, Me. No swirler in recent years has inflicted more damage on seaside property on the Atlantic coast, and none has tarried so long tic coast, and none has tarried so long in passing. The northeaster continued yesterday in this neighborhood, but with such midness that it did not materially affect the rising tides. The upper parts of Long Island got the worst of the blow yesterday morning.

The day here was gloomy and wet, with a breeze that fluctuated between 14 and 25 miles. Snow flurries alternated with showers of chilly rain.

The prophecy of Washington is "cloudy and colder" for this section to-day and "partly cloudy" with strong northwesterly winds to-morrow. The temperature at midnight was 31 degrees, and it is likely that before sunrise the mercury may get several degrees below that point.

A storm that came out of the Gulf of Mexico was central at Tampa, Fla. last night and manifesting energy that may last it on its way up the coast, or through the coast States, and may bring more trouble for New Jersey.

that there is little to cheer them. The inundated streets are in a frightful condi-tion, filled with mud and debris of all kinds. Cottage lawns where the cottages kinds. Cottage lawns where the cottages themselves escaped serious damage are buried beneath sand and logs, where the steadily pounding surf shot fifty and sixty feet in the air in a solid sheet of water and spray. The fishing industry in this section is at a standstill.

"What I do not understand," said Mr. Whitman, "is why the amendment should have to pass the Legislature at all since it is coming up before the constitutional convention. If the amendment comes the fore the people twice, through the Legislature and through the convention, will it not confuse the voters.

"If we let the Legislature adjourn without passing the amendment it will create a bad impression of suffrage throughout the country," replied Mrs. Blatch, "Moreover, Mr. Whitman, we have beaten all our enemies in the last Legislature and we have the Legislature in good training. We don't want to begin all over again on another one. We are not sure the amendment will come up before the constitutional convention."

THERE ON MOTHER'S ORDER

Shortly before 2 o'clock vesterday afternoon a touring car pulled up in front of the Municipal Building and two how's this for horse sense? passengers alighted and skipped happily up the steps of the building to the marriage license bureau. There they said their names were Arthur Tate, son of the late John M. Tate, president of the Whiting Paper Company, and Miss Charlotte Irene Gibbs of 68 West 126th They wanted a marriage license n a hurry, a mighty big hurry, as they were a month behind in their plans, Dan Cupid must have taken immense personal satisfiction in his victory in steering them safely to the marriage license office, for here is the log of the bark of love during months on a stormy order. While in Pawling, N. Y., a year ago Miss Gibbs met Mr. Tate, who shortly before had come into an inheritance of two-thirds of hin father's estate, valued at about $100,000. A romantic love affair immediately sprang up between the young couple. Tate paid constant court to the young women until June of this year. Then they became engaged and planned to be married in November. Then the storm clouds gathered. Tate's mother, Mr. Susan Tate, who lives at $600 West 181st street, learned of the love match and, it is said, viewed it
